Primary and Secondary Sources

Definition of a Primary Source: Original documents created or experienced contemporaneously with the event being researched.

Characteristics of a Primary Source: First-hand observations, contemporary accounts of the event, and viewpoints of the time.

Examples of Primary Sources: Interviews, reports, studies, creative works, speeches, news footage, diary entries.