1. How do I migrate to the new RefWorks?

Log in into your existing RefWorks account. You will see a link to move to the new RefWorks. Click on it and follow the prompts.

2. Can I use my existing RefWorks login details?

No, you will use an SJSU email address and password in the new RefWorks.

3. Do I have to migrate?

We encourage and recommend that you migrate and take advantage of new features and functionality. Some of you are aware that when using the legacy RefWorks in OneSearch, the import will not work. This problem goes away when you switch to the new RefWorks!

4. How do I migrate my citations from the old to the new RefWorks?

It takes just a couple of clicks! Directions on how to move your citations are in this screencast:

https://youtu.be/vxcejyKCB5g
5. What is the URL for the new RefWorks?

https://refworks.proquest.com

6. Is a group code still required for Google Scholar in the new RefWorks?

No.

7. What about the RefWorks link in OneSearch and the A-Z List of Databases?

When you click on a RefWorks link to export, you will see this image. Once you've switched to the new RefWorks, feel free to turn off that notification. You will also see the Find It @SJSU button in the new RefWorks when you import something as well.

8. Are there training materials?

When you register with the new RefWorks, you will receive a welcome email with some quick help instructions. Here are some more help links.

- The ProQuest LibGuide is a good source.
- Learn to use the new RefWorks in 20 minutes video and more on YouTube.